ABOUT DUBROVNIK

After visiting Dubrovnik, Irish writer George Bernard Shaw commented: "Those who are looking for heaven on earth should come and see Dubrovnik".

Dubrovnik is a world rarity for its impressive architecture, its array of medieval and Renaissance forts, its famed defensive walls and palaces as well as religious buildings. This pearl of the Adriatic has a history of over one thousand years, which makes it a European cultural centre. History is inscribed in every nook and cranny of the city and almost every structure has its own historical worth. Since 1979 Dubrovnik has been under UNESCO protection on the World Heritage List. In en-deavours to preserve the original contours as faithfully as possible, many buildings today during renovation and reconstruction procedures rely on wooden products.
